Description:

Even after my BBF implored upon me to read this book and look into the writings and audios of Anita Moorjani, I kept putting it off. Maybe it wasn't my time. When I finally read the book, I was amazed at how two very different people on their own very different paths could have so many interesting similarities in how to open up their lives. We both suffered from Hodgkins (though in very different ways), we both had near-death-experiences (though again, very differently), we both learned how to capitalized on life renewed. I am now, of course, a huge Moorjani fan and recommend her book to everyone.
